Effects Move Your Head Animation in After Effects Animation is the process of creating the illusion of movement through the visual display of a series of static or still images very quickly. The traditional cutaway method of animation uses static two-dimensional drawings created on 35mm film and exposed through the camera for each second of the animation. This involves a trade-off between tight timing and smooth drawings. In the mid-1960s, it was discovered that flashing, or randomly-phased, lights and textured backgrounds could hide the drawings while speeding up the time it took to produce each second of animation. This technique is typically used for creating special effects or logos. We use After Effects to animate this piece. The final animation was created under the direction of Blaine Brown from Lytro and this is a short snippet of what
